Vol. 16 • No. 17 CARMEL, CALIFORNIA • APRIL 24, 1942 FIVE CENTS

SAYS THE EDITOR

WE HAVE SOME MORE

Miss Adaline Gray has given us a few more copies of "Cross Trails and Chaparral", the delightfully written and factual book about Carmel by her late sister, Miss Eunice Gray. Several people have asked for copies of the book since we ran out of the first allotment of them given to us. We can now provide them, if you are interested.

WE APOLOGIZE

The report of this thing came to us late this week, and we haven't had time thoroughly to investigate, but what we have heard convinces us that things weren't exactly on the up-and-up at the Drive-In Market auction last Monday. As The Cymbal printed the advertising of the auction and was principally responsible for getting the public there, we feel that we should apologize for our part in any unfair dealing. As we get it, the auctioneer, an outside man, did not live up to the statements made in the advertisement which we printed. He refused, we are reliably informed, to "offer to the public, as well as dealers" the "high grade groceries" . . "in lots to suit everyone", as the advertisement read. We understand that during a dinner-hour intermission in the auctioning a large amount—some 25 cases—of foodstuffs, was sold to a dealer who did no open bidding and that when a number of individuals demanded that these goods be broken up into smaller lots and offered to their bidding, the auctioneer refused.

The Cymbal apologizes for its indirect part in this shenanigan.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

Such is the headline on a "news" story appearing in the "Honolulu Advertiser" March 14, presumably from a press service in California, datelined "Carmel, Calif."

The clipping was sent to The Cymbal by Mrs. Blanchard Steeves, one of our ardent subscribers. It informs readers of the Advertiser that "bus service to Carmel from the Monterey railroad station, a distance of three miles, has been suspended. Visitors alighting from the train find themselves met by an ancient stage coach, drawn by six prancing horses."

And that isn't all, friends. Listen to the rest of it:

"Livery stables have reopened in Carmel to rent horses ad buggies to those wishing to tour the surrounding countryside."

That's the story, and it's lovely. Of course, there's only one mistake in it, but an all-embracing mistake. None of it is true.

We know where the germ of MAYOR KEITH EVANS, elected for a second term, appears to be pleased about it.

It Will be a Fine Program on May 3 And It Will Benefit Civilian Defense

Washington turns a deaf ear to calls from local Civilian Defense, and Carmel "gimmies" are unheard in the corridors of the capitol. That is why our workers are staging a benefit concert to be held in the Playhouse May 3. Many who find it inconvenient or impossible to do Civil Defense work will be glad of an opportunity to buy tickets, thus enabling block wardens, first-aiders and fire fighters to purchase needed equipment. The talent for this entertainment and all services in connection with it, even the use of the Playhouse, printing of tickets, piano tuning, newspaper space — all are donated. Thus 100 per cent of the proceeds will be turned over to Carmel Civilian Defense. Here are some of the high spots on the program.

Charita Navarro, a favorite in South America who broadcasts regularly to the southern continent via short wave for the Latin America Consulate, will sing the dazzling Proch "Variations for Coloratura", and a group of English and French songs. Miss Navarro's pure lyric soprano has received high praise from San Francisco critics. She is a star pupil of Lawrence Strauss, well known here.

Clare Lauche, famous dancer, who has soloed with her own company in many of our big cities, will interpret the six numbers of Elayne Lavrans' piano Suite with dances she has created for the occasion. Her Carmel performance will be a world premiere for this work. Also Miss Lauche will dance four miscellaneous pieces, one to music by Tschaikowsky.

This artist has had a most successful career. Three of New York's current ball room routines, one of them at the Waldorf Astoria, were created by her. Two of her pupils are touring with the Ballet Russe. For five years Miss Lauche served as production manager for Bolm's famous San Francisco Opera Ballet.

For another feature, Elayne Lavrans (Mrs. James Hopper) is presenting for the first time anywhere, her new violin and piano sonata, a work that deserves to receive wide recognition. Elayne will play the piano part. This young woman was discovered by David Alberto before she reached her teens. Later she won a scholarship at Curtis School of Music, Philadelphia, and was given four years of study in this country and in Europe.

John Shelby Metcalf Jr., plays the violin part with an unostentatious freshness, charm and sincerity that only unspoiled youth can achieve. A brilliant future is predicted for this young man.

Donors not mentioned in last week's list include: Clifford Cook, printing programs; Howard Timbers, who gives the tickets; Eleanor Ellis, in charge of program advertising; Anne Barrows, in charge of ushers; Chloe Wilson and Ruth Cook, flowers and decorations; the Women's Auxiliary of Carmel Civilian Defense will sell the tickets.

HAL GARROTT.

EVANS STAYS MAYOR; McINDOE, GODWIN WIN ABSENTEE VOTE

It's Mayor Keith Evans for another two years—the balance of his present term as a member of the Carmel city council.

This was decided by unanimous vote of the council at its reorganization meeting Tuesday night when a new member, Fred U. McIndoe, was sworn in, as were the two incumbent members, P. A. McCreery and Frederick M. Godwin, who were re-elected a week ago Tuesday.

The election vote was canvassed by the council and the result as to the number of votes received by each candidate was found to be the same as that announced by the two election boards.

The council then counted the absentee ballots, numbering 11. Of these McCreery received 3 votes, Godwin, 7; McIndoe, 10; Mrs. Ida Newberry, 3.

This brought the totals for all candidates to

P. A. McCreery	500
Frederick M. Godwin	499
Fred U. McIndoe	384
Ida B. Newberry	252
William Booker	102
Paul Mercurio	2

It should be said, in defense of Paul's possible ability as a candidate for office, that his name was not on the ballot, but a friend in each precinct cast a vote for him.

As to the bestowal of commisionerships, the new member, McIndoe, was not given the one usually handed out to a newly-elected member, that of public health and safety, as Fred Godwin desired to retain that post. McIndoe was made commissioner of fire, the job held by Arthur Hull who was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Herbert Heron last year.

The next meeting of the council will be the regular monthly session on the evening of Wednesday, May 6.

Janet White Tells Of Bataan Horror

Some of the terrible details of the suffering and agony of the American soldiers on Bataan and Corregidor were brought back to California first-hand this week by Mrs. Janet White, widow of John Bidwell White, mining engineer who was killed in a mine disaster near Manila five years ago.

Mrs. Willis White, mother of John Bidwell White, received a letter Monday from her daughter, Mrs. Francis Herrick of Oakland, telling of seeing Janet White for an hour or two in San Francisco. Mrs. White was on her way to Washington, after having finally reached California from Manila by way of Corregidor and Australia. She is a secretary in the office of High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and with Mr. and Mrs. Sayre and his private secretary, she lived for days on Corregidor in tunnels and finally in the party of four escaped to Australia. She gave Mrs. Herrick some of the details of the horrible situation among the Americans with no milk, no American food and no medicine. She says that the Japanese have pevernted any Red Cross agent getting in to help them.

PAUL WARRINGTON TO BE GRADUATED AT ANNAPOLIS

Paul Warrington, Carmel boy in Annapolis, wrote his mother, Mrs. Natalie Warrington, that his class is anxiously awaiting June Week, when they will receive their senior stripes and rings. Young Warrington will be graduated next year, as a regular line officer, after being rushed through school in two and one-half years, due to the war. So far nothing has been told the men about summer leave.

Meanwhile, Paul's brother, Harry Warrington, is polishing off his first month at the San Diego naval training station. Harry hopes eventually to get in the lighter-than -aircraft service.

Guayule Display At Library

If you want to know what it looks like go to the Carmel Public Library and see.

Dr. Francis E. Lloyd, professor emeritus of botany of Magill University, the man who knows what makes guayule tick and has written the last word about it in a book which answers all questions, has installed the exhibit.

And remember, as we have previously informed you: the word is pronounced "wy-oolee".

Control and protection against outbreaks of communicable diseases is especially important at this critical time. Monterey county, with its shifting population, is vulnerable to outbreaks and spread of diphtheria and smallpox. The Monterey County Medical Society in cooperation with the Monterey County Health Department, is urging all parents to see that their children of pre-school and school age are immunized against diphtheria and vaccinated against smallpox before the end of the present school year.

the thing came from. The "Peninsula Herald" had quite a story a month or two ago about the possibility of such a thing, the rubber tire situation being what it is and, worse, what it's going to be, and the Carmel Business Association thought the idea, if carried out, would be a nice bit of publicity for Carmel.

Perhaps it would, but the fly in the ointment is that horses could not pull a stage coach up the Carmel Hill on account of its steepness, partially, and particularly because of its paving. There is no foothold for horses pulling a heavy load, and in wet and slippery weather the situation for the horses' hoofs would be worse; as a matter of fact, impossible.

There is some talk of establishing a horse-drawn bus route for trips to Point Lobos, etc., but even on a level road, which the Point Lobos road is precisely not, the going would be bad on the pavement. As the cockney has it: "It's not the edges and the urdles that urt the orses' oofs; it's the ammer, ammer, ammer on the ard ighway."

WE BELIEVE THIS ONLY RIGHT AND PROPER

An attempt to put an initiative measure on the state ballot this November is being made throughout the state—a measure that would prohibit any candidate for office filing as a candidate for the nomination of a party of which he is not a registered member.

We believe this most fitting and proper. The party primary, in which the people, as members of a party could select their party candidate was substituted years ago for the often corrupt party convention system. This was a step in the right direction, but the framing of the California primary law permitted anybody to file for the nomination of any party. This defeated the purpose of the law in that it permitted the nomination of a registered Republican on the Democratic ticket and vice versa. In order to assure a candidate of getting the nomination of the party in which he was not registered, many members of one party changed their registrations to that of the other so that they could take part in what is actually a party convention in which, as a convention, they could not participate as accredited party delegates under the old system.

The law does provide, however, that if a candidate wins the nomination of a party of which he is not a registered member, he cannot accept that nomination unless at the same primary he wins his own party nomination.

As a concrete example, Earl Warren, the present attorney general of California, though a life-long Republican, won both party nominations four years ago and ran uncontested in the general election.

Now, as a candidate for governor, he will attempt to do the same thing this year.

The present initiative petition cannot prevent this this year, as sufficient signatures will merely put it on the ballot for the people to vote on at the November election.

The Cymbal will have one of the petitions here at the office, probably this week-end, but if the one sent for does not arrive in time, we can tell you who has one for your signature.

THIS COUNCIL MUST DO SOMETHING ABOUT DOGS

In the "Letters to the Paper" column this week you will find some words from Jules Kahofer, manager of the Humane Shelter in Monterey endeavoring to explain to Carmel residents and dog owners why they get no service from the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals without paying for it on the barrel-head.

Of course, to those who keep abreast of municipal affairs in Carmel what Kahofer says is not news. We all know that the Carmel city council, faced with a demand from the Humane Society for double the amount which the city had been appropriating for the society's service in Carmel, got up on its ear about a year ago and decided to appropriate nothing at all for the purpose. Immediately, of course, the society ceased to collect dog license fees over here, to patrol the streets for unlicensed dogs, to pick up animals loose, sick, dying or dead, and withdrew completely from any official activity on this side of the hill.

So now, when a resident of Carmel wants a cat taken off his or her hands, or a troublesome, unlicensed dog taken charge of, and telephones to the Humane Society about it, the reply is that service will be rendered C. O. D., and, too, that it will be rendered when the animal-collector can find time to do it amidst the labor of his services to communities which are continuing to support the shelter and its work.

This reply when you call the Humane Shelter arouses our citizens and it is understood that Kahofer, who is a very able and, too, amiable manager of the Shelter, gets some warm words tosed at him.

In his letter, printed in The Cymbal today, Kahofer virtually suggests to the irate Carmel citizens and dog owners that they toss the warm words at their own city council.

As far as the matter of direction is concerned, he is dead right. By its action in declining further aid to the Humane Society in the maintenance of its service and its shelter, the Carmel city council has taken over the matter of the care and cure of dogs and cats in Carmel. We don't know which of the five councilmen has been selected as the poundman, but they all can't pass the buck; the four incumbents there now all voted against the appropriation asked by the Humane Society.

Why not write a letter to Bernard Rowntree (it's time he got on the receiving end of some letters—he can write 'em; can he read 'em?) and tell him to get up to your house and take that sick cat off your back steps. He won't do it, but The Cymbal would be interested in how he says he won't.

The Characteristics of a Good American

AMERICAN LEGION ESSAY CONTEST

(Prize Essay)

The characteristics of a good American are the characteristics of the average American. It stands to reason that the average American is a good American. If this were not true, how might this nation have attained its present position in the world? The worth of a nation depends, not on the caliber of a single individual, but on the strength of the people; the common man is the true representative of nation's character.

The good American is not necessarily the man who is lauded by his contemporaries and remembered in history. He may just as well be the little man, the man who does the work. He is the man on the night shift in the airplane factory, the man who works his farm, the man who is building destroyers in the ship yard, the man on the cutter in the saw mill. They are the good Americans. Theirs are the characteristics that are America.

These men are loyal and brave. This loyalty and bravery is knit together with a pride; they are proud of their country, which gives them the kind of life they want and they are proud of their country's doctrines, which assures them of this life. These Americans are strong, and they are strong enough to fight for a long time. They back up their loyalty and pride of country with this strength, and if they never fail in that, America will never fail.

SADE'S UNDERGOES MOST ATTRACTIVE RENOVATION

Sade's retains the same good old Carmel atmosphere in its decorations and furnishings, but it has had a most attractive face-lifting. The chair covers, table cloths, window drapes and floor coverings have all been changed and there are several other improvements, such as the installation of a salad kitchen upstairs and enlargement and modernizing of the kitchen. The English Room downstairs, back of the tap room, is all dresssed up, too, as well as the tap room itself. Sade's makes a specialty of dining room service right up to 2 o'clock, the hour of the curfew.

GIRL SCOUTS ORGANIZE FOR DEFENSE WORK

A Girl Scout Senior Service Troop, for war service only, is being formed by Carmel girls. Any high school or college girl is eligible. Sign-up started Tuesday at Carmel High School.

In an emergnecy these girls will relieve the strain on everybody. They will receive instruction on such things as emergency feeding of small groups, care of children in air raids, first aid, warden duties and messenger service.

HULSEWES HAVE BEEN IN CARMEL FIVE YEARS

This next Sunday will mark the fifth anniversary of the coming of Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Hulsewe to All Saints' Church. Services will be as follows: 8 a. m., the service of the Holy Communion. At 9:30 a. m., the Junior Church and School. At 11 a. m., the service of Morning Prayer with a special sermon message by the rector, Rev. C. J. Hulsewe. The Offertory Anthem: Felix Mendelssohn's "How Lovely Are the Messengers." The full Vested Choir will participate in this service under the direction of Reu E. Manhire, with Alice Lee Keith at the organ.

Thursday, April 30, at 2 p. m., will be the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

NEW CIVIL DEFENSE POSTER OUT SOON

Watch for the poster that will soon be out, announcing the Civilian Defense benefit. They are very special signs, for they are done by the illustrious of Carmel. Each of the following will submit a showy "masterpiece": Henrietta Shore, Jaffrey Harris, Florence Lockwood, Marjory Pegram and Ellen Brown.

If We Don't Print It, It's Because We Can't

If at any time during the duration, you should happen to see something interesting in a militaristic sort of way, and when upon receiving your Cymbal you fail to find the event inscribed upon its hallowed pages, don't swear, do not despair, it's not the fault of the editorial staff.

On Monday we received a note saying that the "Public Relations Office of Fort Ord

1. Requested that no publicity whatever be given Army maneuvers taking place in Monterey Bay. No picture either.

2. This is requested by the Division Commander. Signed J. K. Connell, 1st Lt., Cavalry, Press Relations Officer. Zip your lip."

Maybe if we used "Any similarity to persons living or dead, etc."—but no, there's probably no way to get around it.

CARMEL LOW ON ILLS

Carmel is muttering in its pine beard. It didn't get its full quota of reportable diseases for the weeks ending April 4 and 11. The best its uncooperative population could muster up were four old wishy-washy cases of chickenpox. Salinas had 13 of at least eight different varieties. Monterey had seven, and even Pacific Grove—we repeat "even"—had six reportable cases. Well, there's something a little degrading about it all.

Pieper Talks To Great Crowd

Describing the insidious war conducted by fifth columnists in America and picturing the methods of the axis agents as similar to those of the American gangsters, Nat J. L. Pieper, FBI superintendent for the Northern California district, talked before a standing-room-only audience at Sunset auditorium in Carmel last Friday night. The meeting, arranged by the local Civilian Defense organization in cooperation with Chief of Police Roy Fraties, was the most successful gathering in the interests of community defense work ever held on the peninsula.

200 Soldier Boys At USO Dance

Last Saturday, April 18, around 200 stalwart lads from the Army came over to the formal dance at the USO. Skipper and the others had outdone themselves with decorations and festive atmosphere and everyone had a marvelous time dancing to the strains of a real orchestra and watching the floor show. The change from juke-box and bright lights to all this wonderful atmosphere, plus the colorful formals of the girls, plus the fact it was Saturday night, made the evening a huge success. But for goodness' sake, girls, more of you should turn out for these affairs! Not only are they loads of fun for you, but it would help even up the great odds, for there are always three times as many boys as girls.

MARTIN OGDENS OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

Celebration of 50 years packed with rich living, fine friendships, and good fun, brought Mr. and Mrs. E. Martin Ogden (the celebrities) together with Terry Ogden, their son, and Mrs. A. L. Sowter (the celebrants), for a Golden Wedding Anniversary dinner party at the Bluebird.

Friends, learning of the occasion, saw to it that the house was filled with flowers of all kinds, and that congratulatory cables were far from wanting. However, the gift the Ogdens considered best of all was a telephone call. It was from their daughter, Mrs. Vivian Holdridge and came clear from Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden are from Hartford, Conn., but come regularly to Carmel to visit. In case anyone is interested in how Terry gained his photographic instincts—both his father and his father's father were photographers in the East.

Church of the Wayfarer

"The Conquest of Fear" will be the sermon theme of Dr. James E. Crowther Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. Grace C. Howden will sing, 'The Madonna and Child", words by D. N. Lehmer, music by H. B. Passmore. Margaret Sherman Lea will play the following organ selections: "Fugue et Variation", Cesar Franck; "Lullaby", Johannes Brahms; "Allegro Maestoso", Cesar Franck. The Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be administered. Visitors are cordially invited to share with us this 11 o'clock hour of worship.

"A Sizzling Performance"; "Evening of Intensity" Says Cymbal's Reviewer of Gregor Piatigorsky's Recital

When Mr. Piatigorsky's cello advances onto the stage, held high, followed by the dynamic artist himself, this forthright entrance augurs a sizzling performance. And the prophecy held true, for this was an evening of intensity, both on the part of the artist in his devotion to his music-making, and on the part of the audience in their appreciative concentration on his masterful work.

Mr. Piatigorsky opened the eyes of his audience, not only to the capabilities of this very difficult instrument, the cello, but demonstrated the emotional content of its music to the full. Only a supreme master, the king of the instrument, can control its innumerable moods with such consummate ease. There must even have been some innocent hearers who would have listened and said, "I never imagined the cello would have been so easy to play." But, after all, that is great art, which combines great musical understanding, perfect mental and bodily coordination, fine balancing of tone and great discipline of emotional control in unforced rendition. This supreme artist has it all, and may claim his place with the gods of music-makers.

The program was a most comprehensive one. The older music was represented by the Sonate in C by Boccherini, played in a beautiful flowing style, and showing particularly great delicacy in the higher register. Here the cellist's tone hung tenuously on the bow and there was a beautiful legato feeling throughout. The final movement with its acute demands on fingers and bow-wrist must have been an eye-opener to those less familiar with the cello.

The Brahms sonata, with such mellow tone at its beginning, with cello passages deftly accompanying the piano when that instrument had its particular importance, and with such freely bowed arpeggios, again betokened the sure hand of the real artist. Here was serenity, romance, warmth, intensity and dramatic suggestion. The beautiful phrasing in the second movement, and the vigorous conception of the final allegro were most impressive.

One thinks of the piano when speaking of Chopin, but how suitable to the cello was this "Introduction et Polonaise Brillante." In the introduction, there was one particularly poignant bit of three descending notes that alone would have merited this reviewer's attendance at the concert. After these gentle caressing tones, the Polonaise was arresting first in its vigor, then its delicacy of decoration, not to mention a particularly fine bit of pizzicato, or plucking of the strings. Surely the trained musicians in the audience must have appreciated a difficult upward series of octaves in perfect intonation. Yet Mr. Piatigorsky takes music out and away beyond such things as notes, bows, strings and technical display.

As an encore to the first group, Mr. Piatigorsky gave us an exquisite performance of Ravel's "Habanera", Spanish rhythms as refined by a French composer. Here was lovely romantic atmosphere of Spain, where one could float away on a magic carpet of enchanting sound.

After the intermission came the "Scene before parting" and "Masques" of Prokofieff. The first of these was not so provocatively "modern" that it could not be enjoyed to the full. It was melodic music, of romantic vein, with interest harmonies and a constantly unfolding melody. Here the soloist produced a beautiful effect in a tremolo passage that sounded like a dying bell. The "Masques" really qualifies as "modern" music, with discordant harmonies like Stravinsky's, but so expertly presented by the soloist that more conservative music lovers could readily be converted.

Weber's "Theme and Variations", consisting of a charming melody simply stated, which was followed by rapid figurations which proved intriguing. The coordination of fingers and bow at such high speed, and in, shall we say, the "stratosphere" of the upper fingerboard, was dazzling. The Debussy prelude, a step-sister of this composer's wellknown "Girl With the Flaxen Hair", was in its infinement of performance one of the most enchanting spots of the evening. The beautifully pointed "Tarantelle" of Faure and the sinuous and torrid "Orientale" of Granados led to the final number on the program, "La Campanella." Though written by the world's most extraordinary executant on the violin, Paganini, for that instrument, we heard it performed with consummate ease on what would seem an even more difficult instrument on account of its much greater size. Now you know things about the cello you never suspected. Final encores were a "Fire Dance" of de Falla, with wild Spanish rythms and Saint-Saens' picturization of "The Swan", from the "Carnival of Animals", and a dance by a composer whose name I could not catch, but might have been by David Popper, a cellist who wrote music most grateful for the instrument.

The most able accompanist, Mr. Valentin Pavlovsky, was, besides being most discreet in tone, an extremely able, dependable and artistic performer, and certainly a great asset to his colleague. His work in the Brahms sonata was especially appreciated.

A word is due the audience, for it was most gratifying to observe that this artist of the first rank was really appreciated by his hearers, in the attention accorded him, the warm acclaim that greeted him, and the enthusiastic comments about him. The Carmel Music Society is to be congratulated whenever it brings an artist of this caliber to Carmel, and we are in its debt for a magnificent recital, for we know now all there is to know about the violoncello, whose prophet is Mr. Piatigorsky.

—JAFFREY HARRIS

Following the Piatigorsky recital the Edward Kusters entertained the James Hoppers and the Gunnar Norbergs.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, April 26, on the subject, "Probation After Death." BUNDLES FOR BLUEJACKET BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN PLAN FURTHER WORK

Mrs. Ralph Skene, chairman for the Bundles for Britain, called a meeting at her Lincoln street home on Tuesday afternoon. Tea was served at 4 o'clock, after which the regular business meeting was called to order. Miss B. L. Bowen was appointed treasurer in place of Mrs. Tom Douglass, who may be leaving Carmel.

Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Jr., chairman of the American Bundles for Bluejackets, whose husband is now aboard a submarine, said that helmets, mittens and scarfs were badly needed by the American sailors.

Those present were Mrs. Skene, Mrs. Fraser Hancock, Mrs. Roy Sutton, Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Mrs. Irene deGaller, Mrs. W. Hartwell, Mrs. Charles H. Rayne, Mrs. Rene W. Moore, Mrs. W. E. Pulliam, Mrs. M. V. B. MacAdam, Mrs. Saxton Pope, Mrs. G. H. Ball, Miss Bertha Bowen, Miss L. Davis and Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel.

The help of everyone is needed to knit and bring in articles for the thrift shop on Dolores near Seventh.

In San Francisco this week is Mrs. Adam Darling. She is visiting with her friend, Mrs. C. I. Burt.

SACCHARINE SILHOUETTES

EWIG SMALL FRY

It all started the year the Queen of Korea was assassinated in the royal palace in Seoul. She was first cut down, her clothing was then soaked in oil, and the body burned. That of course was in Korea; in San Francisco another hot event was taking place—Edwin H. Ewig, big in the eyes of his parents, but small in the eyes of the world, made a sweeping entrance into the dusty earth. There was a parallel to be drawn between the Queen and him, but we've forgotten it.

As a baby Edwin was not particularly impressive. He had the ordinary amount of dimples in the usual places; there were many changes made in his young life (all of them taken care of by his mother); and like most babes, he spoke in a jargon that made him sound somewhat like an inarticulate dictator with the hiccups. He wasn't very pretty. He had no teeth. You can't be very pretty with no teeth. Some people find it very hard with a full set.

Arouses Aristotle Abilities

But despite his infantile disabilities, he managed, like the moth, to crawl around for a while, eating and growing, to snuggle down to a period of mental vacuity (this is sometimes known as education) and finally emerged as the glorious adult, with a wing-spread of—well, let's not carry our metaphors and metamorphosis too far.

But don't jump ahead to The Man too quickly. There's still a little book-learning to polish off. He hoed his mental weeds out of "kinder-garten" in San Francisco and before he could stop he had graduated from the eighth grade. And then, just to show that "Shucks, t'warn't nuthin'", he went on to advance himself, entering as a freshman in Watsonville high school. It was here, in the Apple City that Edwin's father operated a hotel. Ah, but weren't those the days though! Imagine being able to enjoy the facilities of a hotel without having hundreds of hungry eyes follow you across the room, while hundreds of furtive minds are wondering 'Is he—is he going to leave a tip?"

What, No Farmer's Daughter?

High school, as it is mercifully wont to do, came to an end, and after a course in Business Administration at the University of Chicago Young Ewig, just for the sake of confusion, returned to the City, San Francisco is called the City just to give relief to people who are tired of calling it San Francisco. (It also has a tendency to confuse Los Angelesites and other aliens).

In 1922 he became a traveling salesman. (We knew a traveling salesman once. But that's another story). Edwin was making the rounds for the J. H. M. Neubauer Wholesale House now defunct) and although he wasn't suffering at all from malnutrition, you might say that it was his first taste of groceries.

He moved from San Francisco to San Jose, a matter of a few miles as the swallows come back. Here in the city that was one of the two first capitals of California, he lived for four years. In 1926 he became general manager of Neubauer's. This was the chance he had long awaited; this was the opportunity he had wished for. He threw himself into his work! In 1928, his work threw him back. The company collapsed. The network of traveling salesmen was dissolved. It was the Fall of the Roaming Empire.

Served Simple-Sensed Citizens

And then came Carmel. Here in the middle of December and the heart of Ocean, Businessman Ewig opened his original Ewig's Grocery Store. There he remained for 14 years, as much a part of the display as the Philadelphia Scrapple or the Formosa Oolong. Tenderly he cared for the little minds as they wandered in behind his counters—never taking their money unless they had some, graciously escorting them out the front door if they hadn't.

Then in 1941 a great decision was made. He waved a sad farewell to the baby food, shed a silent tear over the mock turtle soup, stood breathless before the limburger cheese, locked up shop, turned the key over to a new owner, and departed.

Joined the Fright Brigade

He was due for a surprise. He thought he was through with foodstuffs, but no, he entered the real estate business, and ran into more stuffed prunes, imported baloney, sugar drips, and spoiled cookies, than he ever heard of in the grocery business.

And so we see him today, the lead steed in the team of Ewig and Morehouse. They bought out one of the Thoburn branches and added insurance to real estate. This works out rather nice. First Ewig rents you a typical Carmel Cottage, and then Morehouse sells you insurance so your wife will have something to live on when the termites finally take over the foundation, and the typical cottage collapses on you. This is known as "high finance." It sometimes leads to a seat on the stock exchange, but more often to a complete nervous breakdown.

Ed Ewig has only one hobby—work. See? Now you know why he's as is. He has been in every state in the union, an unusual mental state, Canada and Mexico, proving you can work and have a good time. This is known as optimism.

Whatta Man

He's been one of the brighter spots in the polka-dot field of Carmel civics. For three years beginning 1934, he was chairman of the board of education. It was in about 1936 that he began to realize the possibilties of infanticide.

He is now vice-commander of the American Legion, vice-president of the Business Association (all these vices—hmm) and—this'll kill you—president of the Percentograph Corporation, with headquarters in Carmel. We don't know what a Percentograph is. Ed Ewig himself says it's a machine, and it's just because we trust him that we'll believe even that.

There's one thing about Energetic Ed that puzzles most people. It's how he manages to always appear so slick. He looks as though he were just going to an American Legion Convention, whereas most of Carmel's other business men look as though they were just getting back.

Tigers Still Top Abalone League

Still leading the Abalone League, the Tigers and the Giants took last Sunday's double-header with scores of 12 to 7 over the Pilots and 10 to 4 over the Shamrocks, respectively. This makes the standings in the league as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Tigers	5	2	.714
Giants	4	3	.517
Pilots	3	4	.429
Shamrocks	2	5	.286

The games last Sunday drew good crowds and kept up the high interest average of the preceding games, despite what the score might indicate.

Next Sunday's games ought to be very good, with the Giants and the Tigers playing the opener at 1:45, and the Shamrocks and Pilots battling out the windup at 3:00.

Carmel Needs More Recreation

The older people say, 'why you can ride horseback, go to the beach and lots of other things. When we ask them what the lots of other things are, they reply, "why you ought to be able to think of something."

We retire to the back yard to think. We realize we could go horseback riding, but we can't think up a dollar with which to do it. We think of going to the beach to swim. We jump up jubilantly, but sink back when we remember that approximately ten people were drowned last summer in the undertow.

To look at it from a different angle, we could go and bowl in Monterey, skate at Del Monte, swim in Pacific Grove, or play pool or billiards in New Monterey, but those places aren't Carmel!

There is one chance. We could go to the movies, but it's Tuesday afternoon and we saw the same movie Sunday.

We get gloomier and gloomier.

The time is later afternoon, and, if you could creep into our yard and peer through the bushes you'd see us racing sow bugs and getting about as much recreation out of it as a cow chewing grass.

As Walter Winchell says, "Why isn't something done about this?"

What California Public School Week Means to the Students

No three words have meant more to the students throughout their education than Public School Week. Even before students look forward to vacations or dread the coming out of grades, they are thoroughly conscious of Public School Week.

For the student it marks the end of a cycle of time just as much as the Christmas Holidays do for adults. Students work hard during the year. Their final reward is recognition during Public School Week.

The beginning of Public School Week is a time to check on the school's activities in the past year. Our annual high school concert shows the progress of our music classes. The school's activities of the past year are reflected throughout the exhibit and programs.

Public School Week also means a great deal to the parents and the public in general. Parents enjoy meeting their children's teachers. The public is interested in seeing the progress of the school and, lastly, everybody enjoys the specially-prepared programs.

This year Public School Week April 24 to May 1, will start with the Second Annual Carmel High School Concert Program. This feature attraction of our celebration is to be held in Sunset Auditorium tonight (Friday), April 24. The program is to start promptly at 8 o'clock. Be sure to be on time.

The second event of the week will be "Visiting Day", Wednesday, April 29, at the High School. That day is especially set aside for the parents. Wednesday the classes will be open and in session and tea will be served in the Home Economics room from 3 o'clock until 4.

Public School Week will close with a parent-student baseball game, for the Abalone League stars are going to be trounced by the high school baseball team or vice versa. The battle will be on Friday, May 1, at 4 p. m.

Although many traditional events have been cancelled the annual Public School Week has not. It is hoped that the people of Carmel will take advantage of the music program tonight at 8 o'clock.

Student Govt. and Its Effect

Up at Carmel High School the students have control through the Student Government. Being comparatively new, the system has its kinks and troubles, but it is working out.

The students like it and, although I haven't consulted any teachers, I will take it for granted that they do too, as it relieves them of a heavy burden.

Before, when a student misbehaved. talked, caused a disturbance, etc., the teacher just handed out a little slip with a certain number of minutes' detention written on it, and the student served his time without anything to say. Now, however, with student government, the teacher hands out a court summons, and the unlucky fellow appears in court to plead his case if he believes himself not guilty. It's a good thing for us, as we have a chance to prove ourselves with judge, jury and attorneys.

The students have also taken over corridor duty, which was formerly handled by the faculty. Now the Boys' Block C and the Girls' Leaders' Club watch for corridor disturbances and supervise the lunch court, then hand out court summons to the offenders. It's a little difficult to refrain from running from one class to another, but it sinks in after a court summons or two.

In certain study halls, monitors have been appointed at the various tables to see that there is order and a minimum amount of conversation over "work".

So far, as I have said, everything is working out, and with the cooperation of all we should be able to continue with government by the students.

The FIRST GALLEY

AUSTRALIAN JOURNALISM

Last Thursday while The Cymbal was going to press as usual in the "Tide" office in Pacific Grove I spent my free time—in between reading proofs and hauling supplies of coffee—studying a copy of an Australian daily newspaper.

It was the December 24, 1941, edition of "The Telegraph", a Brisbane evening paper, which a relative of Charlie Post's wife, a chaplain in the army, had sent back to them.

At first glance the "Telegraph" didn't look so different from our American papers, except that, as Charlie said, it reminded you of one of our newspapers printed 10 or 15 years ago. When you examined it more closely you found those little differences that, like the Australian and English accents, unmistakably characterize the inhabitants of that huge continent. One thing a student of newspapers notices first is the way all the captions are centered over the stories, instead of being flush left, as in our papers. This affects the appearance of the whole page in a subtle way.

Another thing: the Australians obviously follow the English traffic laws of driving on the left-hand side of the road. The big story of the day, with the largest, heaviest headlines, was placed at the extreme left of the front page.

"STOP PRESS"

The important last minute "Stop Press" flashes were also in the lower half of this extreme left column. It's an interesting little fact. I suppose an English or an Australian reader's eye just naturally glances first at the left-hand side of the page—just as an American's is drawn to the opposite half. Advertisers pay more for the preferred positions on right-hand pages in our newspapers.

On that December day — Christmas Eve in fact!—news had come (too late for anything but the red ink of this "Stop Press" column) that "A Japanese submarine attacked a tanker off the California coast . . between Arguello and Estero Bay, without warning."

How far away that must have seemed to Brisbane readers — probably more remote and unreal than to us now is the news of what the Japs have been doing to Australia! It was merely a little item inconspicuously sandwiched between a paragraph stating that "Lucerne chaff continued to sell well at the Roma Street market" and one colorfully and even slightly ambiguously informing "Telegraph" readers that "plums and apricots were fairly steady but peaches were easier . . . " Well, after all, why not? Who has the most temptation to combat?

But now let's turn to the ever-fascinating social news. We realize after a glance at the first article that Christmas isn't the season of snowy cold and winter sports, but of hot sunshine and, as the Australians quaintly put it, surfing.

A headline reads: "Heavy Holiday Influx at Coast Resorts", and in it we find that Australians call their tent cities "canvas towns." Which leads naturally to somewhat different phraseology from that used by our society and vacation editors. Australians don't camp out, they spend a vacation "under canvas." And here's a suggestion for you reporters trying to vary your personals: "Mr. and Mrs. J. Matheson and sons have selected Fraser Island as the venue for their holidays." Has an elegant sound, eh?

Most of their resorts have less simple names than Fraser Island, however, for the proofreader to struggle with—such as the seaside towns of Maroochydore and Mooloolaba. Appropriately named (we hope) is Coolum Beach! All the personals, by the way, except engagements and a few of the more important events, are set in extremely fine type, run in without paragraphs, so if you want to see your name in print you have to have good eyesight and persistence.

Australians are so fond of pretty feminine names they are generally not satisfied to give A great favorite is Joyce. their girl babies less than two. Among the engagements and other social news practically the only girls mentioned were exotically equipped with such double headers as Daphne Eunice, Joyce Doris, Joyce Elizabeth, Myrtle Joyce, Joyce Isobel, Coral Lillian, Sylvia Myra, et al.

CODE OF THE CLASSIFIED AD.

We come finally to those columns which, almost more than any other section of a paper, give us illuminating sidelights on the home-life of the community. I mean the classified ads.

A fascinated perusal of these Brisbane ads, however, leaves me slightly baffled. I can figure out that even if there are apparently no living rooms in Australian houses, their "lounges" take the place of them. I can picture a "lounge arched to dining-room", but the sleeping arrangements have me completely bewildered. Immediately after being informed that a house has two bedrooms, comes the curt direction — "sleep-out." What goes on at night in those bedrooms?

English money is ever a mystery to me, so that I'm not certain yet whether all these houses which advertise such luxuries as a "Roman bath" are within the reach of the average white-collar family man. Anyhow, if it came to a choice between a Roman bath and being able to sleep where you live, I'd rather bathe in an ordinary American porcelain tub and sleep at home.

There is something else that has got me guessing; it's these houses with "32 perches!" What do you make of that? Would that be extra space to park unexpected week-end guests or does everybody raise pigeons or hens—or just what? One house with 35 perches was located, appropriately enough, "off Birdwood Terrace, Auchenflower."

I've been able to translate most of those abbreviations which make classified ads read like crime codes, but there's one I'm still at sea about. For instance, a house boasting a "large lounge, with plate glass cabinet" also offers "2 vers., with S. O." Why a plate glass cabinet is particularly desirable in a living room is merely a minor mystery beside the cryptic "2 vers., with S. O."

One lodging house, in addition to "early morning trays of tea and toast", also offers "Roman baths, showers and all conveniences including (to make sure you don't misunderstand) running hot water." All showers are described as "H. and C." I suppose it would be odd to have hot water showers only, wouldn't it?

One "Gent" wanted a room for two weeks near Hollywood, which at that sounds no more unreasonable than the one "handy to W'gabba." And I do hope that the Gent who applied for a "vacant (do rooms usually come complete with a little fairy, I wonder?), quiet, respectable room" made connections with the Mrs. Grundy who, further down in the column, advertised a bungalow near the beach. I'm sure he wouldn't be so happy in anyone else's house!

BNSINESS BREVITIES

Among the business ads there is an occasional touch of levity not yet quenched by the yellow peril. There's the John Campbell Hairdressing Salons, for example, which "have a Wave for every head and are ahead for every Wave."

Several firms seemed in need of a mysterious sort of employee designated as a "mercery salesman." I've been speculating quietly as to whether that might be a cross between mercy and mercenary; but it doesn't get me anywhere.

To set your mind at rest I'll assure you now that in Australia even as in San Francisco, "refined gent wishes to meet young, attractive lady." Instead of "object matrimony", however, the Australian puts it simply "v. m.", view to matrimony.

But my favorite subject of speculation is how many people accept Bill Stafford's invitation in the columns of the "Telegraph" classified ads. He says: "Come naked to Coolangatta. Bill Stafford will clothe you at city prices. Nuf sed."

Not quite enough, brother! How do you suggest we travel, by airplane?

Official Civilian Defense News

Let's Look at What Civilian Defense Does In Emergency Work in District

Hugh Johnson has been saying in various ways—"The general public simply does not seem to give a tinker's dam about the war." Executive head of Civilian Defense in Washington, James Landis, has said, "The greatest trouble with Civilian Defense is that people have not awakened to the fact that the United States is at war."

There's plenty of evidence to show that Carmel is entirely different from the national picture as described in the above. Let's look at the record and count up the results of Carmel's Civilian Defense effort to date.

Emergency Work

Naturally the first effort has been put into preparing for actual emergencies. Here are the figures:

1. About 175 Civilian lookouts spend long, lonely hours watching for approach of enemy planes, with additional posts up the valley.
2. Forty Auxiliary Police are now enlisted and trained to supplement the regular police during hours of danger.
3. Thirty Auxiliary Firemen have been recruited and trained to help the regular Carmel Fire Department.
4. Twelve Senior Air Raid Wardens are ready to leave their homes and oversee the work of about 200 block wardens.
5. These 200 Block Wardens are ready to watch their territory to make sure lights are out—to help extinguish fires and help care for the injured. Block Wardens (and they are the vital contact point in the whole organization) have put in 12 hours of instruction on how to do this work—and the training is still going on.
6. Women's Auxiliary has set up 300 homes to be used as refuges for school children in case an air raid catches them going to or from school. This set-up is not yet complete but is getting careful attention and will soon be functioning perfectly.
7. The Control Center—vital nerve center in case of emergency—is about ready to go into operation with 12 trained phone girls prepared to stick to their sets through any trouble. With a new class for an additional number starting soon.
8. Complete census has been taken of Carmel (for the first time in history) permitting Block Wardens to have details of cars available, number of infants, children and incapacitated people in their territories. From this the following information has been compiled:
   - a. Alphabetical file of residents in Carmel.
   - b. Alphabetical file of residents by precincts (for use of Senior Wardens)
   - c. Voluntary service file of personnel supplied to: Ground observation stations, Red Cross, Senior Wardens, Fire Dept., Police Dept., U. S. O., etc.
   - d. Change of address file.
9. Twenty-four hour telephone service to the public supplied by Women's Auxiliary.
10. Women's Auxiliary Organization prepared to maintain precinct kitchens on a 24-hour basis during emergency periods for use of C. D. personnel only.

Anyone who has ever been inside a business office will understand the tremendous, stenographic, clerical, and detail work, as well as executive work needed to pull together the above list of accomplishments. And it has all been done without paid help.

Non-Emergency Work

Civilian Defense does not stop at protecting our homes. The country's need for vital materials is being given serious consideration. The Salvage Committee, headed by Alan Campbell as chairman, with the Women's Auxiliary, has collected an average of a ton of paper a week to turn back to the government. The big clean-up drive from May 2 toll has had careful organization and should yield valuable salvage. A Victory Garden, to encourage home gardening the right way—preventing waste of seeds—is now underway.

There is no limit to the work of Civilian Defense as long as the war lasts. When we are set to the nth degree in actual preparation for emergency, there is still a lot of work to be done in educating housewives to save vital materials at home. We may need to learn to make soap from grease — dip candles to save electricity.

Civilian Defense isn't Mrs. Roosevelt—it isn't James Landis—it isn't Roy Fraties or Keith Evans. Civilian Defense is just you and I doing our level darnedest to learn to take care of ourselves and to learn to live simply, against the time when we may have to. We're not being forced to do it—we're not being driven—it's being done voluntarily—and in Carmel, at least, with humor.

Raid Alarm Signal Still 4 Blasts

The Air Raid Warning signal is still four siren blasts repeated four or more times. The All Clear is still two siren blasts repeated four or more times.

A change in this signal is contemplated for the future, but Carmel CD is waiting for permission from the county to make the change.

When permission is granted and a new signal adopted, the public will be given complete notice in the newspapers and through the CD organization.

In the meantime the Air Raid Warning is now four siren blasts repeated four or more times.

DRUNKEN DRIVING

Allison Byer Rider of Stockton, was on Monday morning fined $50 by Judge George P. Ross for drunk driving. Rider, while under the influence, had backed into the car of Elizabeth McClung White.

Chief Fraties' Auxiliary Police—in brand new uniforms close to the color of the Army's olive drab—checked precincts 3 and 5 last Saturday night for lights. Precinct 3 covers territory from Ocean to city limits and from San Carlos to the city limits. Precinct 5 is bounded by Ocean, San Carlos, city limits and the bay. This territory is a good cross section of Carmel, containing all types of residences and business houses. Only one unattended light was found. A similar check-up on March 19 revealed eight illegal lights. So Saturday's showing is a great improvement.

First offenders get a warning—second offenders will face prosecution, it is announced.

Meet Your Senior Wardens Block Wardens in Carmel Woods

By Arne F. Halle, of Carmel Woods

"If we never have an emergency in Carmel, Civilian Defense is still a worthwhile work", said Mr. Halle, senior air raid warden for Carmel Woods.

Mr. Halle was born in Copenhagen, Denmark. He was naturalized in this country and has lived in Carmel since 1927. He has been a resident of Carmel Woods for 14 years and knows the territory blindfolded. He was still in his teens when he went to work for the Bank of Carmel, where he is now an officer.

'I've put in 30 hours first aid training, attended all the fire lectures, all the police lectures, and have gone to all the motion pictures on the subject of Civilian Defense, both in Carmel and Monterey. That time, added to organizing work with my block wardens and necessary paper work means a good many man hours of effort. But I'll never regret it. The first aid training alone is something everyone should have and can use, war or no war. Civilian Defense has given all of us a chance to catch up on information we missed in an easier and softer life.

"I'm pleased with my organization of Carmel Woods. My block wardens have been unusually faithful in attending classes and lectures. Their work with the public, I believe, has been uniformly good. Our homes are well equipped with the prescribed domestic fire fighting equipment. But we're not through by any means. I'd like to see more blackout equipment in Carmel Woods. But we're working, and we're not going to stop working. I have no fears for the future of my organization. Even if no incidents occur I'm not afraid of the effort lagging from inertia. Because we're working every day to knit the thing closer together, and two months from now I expect even more enthusiasm than exists now for Civilian Defense.

"The Women's Auxiliary has been particularly efficient in Carmel Woods—notifying residents of paper drives, and lugging the bundles around in their own cars."

BLOCK WARDENS SIGNS READY TO GO UP

You'll soon be able to identify your block warden with no trouble at all. Attractive signs made in blue and white will go up in the 200 or more block wardens' homes in a few days. The signs were designed by Melton Hageson, who put in several days of his own time developing a good, legible layout. It is suggested you look for the blue and white warden's sign in your block. It's the home of a man you'll want to know.

Remember--Clean-up Week, May 2-11

In case you missed last week's announcement, following are the high spots of the big Clean-up Drive starting May 2nd through 11th.

City or county trucks will collect the dry grass and pine needles that are making your property unsightly. Rake them together and stack on the street line.

The Carmel Garbage Company will collect old broken-down furniture and other trash free! This material should also be stacked on the street line.

Civilian Defense has arranged with Salvation Army and Goodwill Industries to be a clearing house for people wishing to donate still usable material. If you want either agency to call on you, phone 1924-W.

Any salvage material — old tires, rags, or metal of any sort that can be used to help out the national shortage of vital materials should be set out in the same place for the Civilian Defense Salvage Committee.

PERSONALITIES & PERSONALS

Mrs. Blanche Clark Feted

Friends, flowers, gifts, cake and tea all combined with the affectionate good wishes of family and friends, made Mrs. Blanche Clark's 89th birthday a happy occasion. It occurred on Monday, April 20, and for all the difference apparent in her she might have been celebrating a year taken away rather than one added. Her intense interest and concern for her friends' affairs and welfare continues as fresh and young as ever. The only change from the last birthday is a change from living in the little house on Dolores with son Albert (Kelly to you!) over to the cheerful, ocean-view room in the charming Morgan Rest Home on Carmelo, where daughter Nancy can keep an eye on her.

David Trevvetts to Boise

The Sidney Trevvetts and the Richard Johnsons of Carmel got a blow this week. David Trevvett, manager of the Woolworth store in Santa Rosa, was given a boost and ordered to take charge of the company's store in Boise, Idaho. Boise, as you perhaps know, is somewhat farther from Carmel than Santa Rosa, California, and, of course, Patty Johnson Trevvett, an their two children, Sidney and Susan, must go too. David has gone on to establish himself while Patty and the two children will be here for a while with the Johnsons. Then, it's Boise, and longer periods between visits for the grandparents.

Rubber Expert Here

Among recent visitors to Carmel were Reginald Buller and J. U. Bicknell. The former, who is emeritus professor of the University of Manitoba, gave two delightful Seminars at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Lloyd. Bicknell, a New Englander from near Boston, was for many years manager of the U. S. rubber plantations in the Far East.

On the Job Now—

Col. C. G. Lawrence, Mrs. Lawrence and their daughter, Charlotte, who is the wife of Lieut. Robert Fergusson, were in Carmel over the week-end, seeing their many friends. Col. Lawrence, who was snaked from retirement into active service last year, is stationed in Alameda where he is instructor in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps school.

Libby Splashes In

Libby Danysh splashed into town last week-end. (That's a swell verb—for Libby). With her was Marion Cunningham, personable, too, and an artist. She illustrated Libby's book of poems, published in 1940. The two of them plan to come down here for a week or two in May.

Miss Hiller Has Birthday

Miss Rachel Hiller was the guest of honor at a birthday luncheon given for her by Mrs. Vera Peck Millis last Sunday. Present at the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wheeler, the Misses Betty and Virginia Wheeler, Miss Nina Hiller and Miss Martha Millis.

Delaplane and Bride Here

Stanton Delaplane, one of the star men on the San Francisco Chronicle staff, and a new Mrs. Delaplane are in Carmel, an old stamping ground for Stan, on a two-weeks' honeymoon.

Barnet Segal made a quick trip to San Francisco this week, transacted some business, saw the current stage hit, "Life with Father" at the Geary, stayed at the Empire Hotel and took the train home. It is good to be home, Mr. Segal is reported to have confided to friends on his return.

* * *

Ruth Miller, Jean Gargiulo, Donna Hodges and Betty and Irene Wilson enjoyed an immense week-end in San Francisco. They took in all the city highlights and visited friends at the University of California as well.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morris of Pasadena are back in town again. They are here for a month of taking it easy and fresh air (we won't say anything about sun) and are staying at the Carmel Cottage.

Bill Wheeler, who has been busy with the Vultee aircraft corporation for the past few months, arrived home Wednesday to spend a week with his parents, the W. W. Wheelers.

What is there about the Bay Area that draws Peninsulaites. Enjoying San Francisco highlights for the past week have been Mr. and Mrs. Earl Price, who regardless of tire scarcities, bravely motored all the way.

Roberta Smith spent four days in Piedmont visiting her family. On the way home she stopped in San Francisco to pick up Mary Burr, who had been enjoying a few days in the bay cities.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nielsen left Wednesday for San Francisco to give the city the once over. They will return on Sunday or Monday.

* * *

Mrs. Maud DeYoe and the Misses Jessie and Grace Taplin have returned to Carmel from Los Angeles where they have been visiting friends.

* * *

Bobby DeYoe writes that the army isn't so bad. We won't say just where he is, but don't be surprised if he comes riding into town on a Missouri mule.

* * *

Mrs. Maud DeYoe on Wednesday afternoon, entertained the ladies of the D. A. R. at her home on La Loma Terrace.

* * *

Mrs. Alfred Wolff is staying with her sister, Mrs. Celia Taylor in San Francisco.

Altar Guild Gives Pan-American Program

In honor of Pan-American Day, which President Roosevelt requested the nation to observe and celebrate, the Altar Society of Carmel Mission presented a Pan-American program at Crespi Hall, Thursday afternoon, April 15.

Mrs. Elsie Martinez, president of the Altar Society, introduced the speakers of the afternoon. Mrs. Jessie Kinlock of Monterey gave a brief but comprehensive resume of the Pan-America Union and the achievements of the recent conference at Rio. An interesting paper on the national heroes of South America was read by Miss Harriet Dean. Short biographies of famous Saints and descriptions of picturesque shrines of Latin America was given by Mrs. Martinez. From the records of South American folk music, loaned by Mrs. Clines Nielson from her personal collection, a gay and entertaining musical program was arranged and presented by Miss Micaela Martinez.

Coffee, as a compliment to Pan-America, was served to the members and their guests from Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove.

CHARLOTTE PARKER TO WED, CHAPEL CEREMONY

The wedding of Charlotte Doris Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Parker of Del Monte, and John Henry Goldschmidt, will take place Sunday, April 26, at St. John's Chapel, with a reception to follow in the Copper Cup Room at Hotel Del Monte.

Miss Parker is a graduate of Douglas School, Pebble Beach, and attended the College of the Pacific. Goldschmidt is a graduate of the University of California and is now stationed at Fort Ord.

THE CYMBAL

and here's how you can prove this all by yourself: Just take yourself by the elbow and lead yourself to the nearest mirror. Then, look steadily into the eyes of that handsome face you see before you, and ask:

"What Carmel Paper
Do YOU Read"

Over the CRACKER BARREL AT ROSIE'S

We hear that:

I am back again for a while because I have got a duration and anyway I got to find Joe and Al because I know they come up the river just a little while back and this is how she is happen.

Me and Al we are playing a little game of craps one night with some fancy striped sargents, and we are winning, like alway sand one little tough guy he says

"These dice is loaded." So I says, "Sure and why not? You got a gun and it is loaded, too, aint it? Or aint it?"

And that makes him mad like hell so he says we got to give back the money or else. So Al, he is always getting the fat head and he says, "Or else what?" and the little tough guy says "Or else this" and he gives Al a poke in the face and Al he trips him and the guy he falls all to pieces just like he is made from dishes or something. There is little pieces of him scattered around and he don't bleed or nothing. It scared the hell out of us you bet because we aint seen that before, and we seen a lot since we been in the army.

"What'll we do with him?" says Al and I says, "Sweep him up I guess because tomorrow is suspicion and we can't have nothing mussing up the floor around our beds."

So we put all the pieces in the garbage can only not his gun which Al claims he ought to get because he did the tripping so I give in and let Al have it.

Well, we didn't say nothing about this to no one but we hitched ourselves a ride over to Salinas because we knew that Joe he is over at Mazie's and he would like to hear about it. We only stopped for a few minutes at Castroville to pick up a package and we get to Mazie's around ten or eleven and Joe he aint there. There aint no one there, only Mazie and she says we got to get the hell out because she is gone the limits and is tired of soldiers fighting and not paying for her tamales.

And them swallows what Joe brought that time is all sitting around the kitchen doing nothing only picking their teeth and giving us the bird. It aint very cheerful so I open up the package and says to Mazie,

"Well, let's pretend like it is old times. I brought you a present." But all she will say is "Get out or you will get me pinched." And I says "You are crazy because there aint no one can pinch you only Joe and you know it like the time that fat guy tried it and the next day you was making him into tamales." That made her laugh and she said, "Alright boys but you got to get out of theem army clothes so no one will know I got a couple of dogs in here", and she gets out a couple of pink wrappers which look very funny on us, but we roll a couple or so of cigarettes and are enjoying ourselves like always.

Well, Al he went out for a minute and he come back quick and he is yelling, 'What the godam hell you got in there!"

Mazie she is just laughing like she is having a fit and wont say nothing so I go look and see and God Almighty if there aint Joe. And he is sitting in her bath tub only just his head is there. It is sticking up out of a lot of stuff that is like soap suds only it ain't and it is piled up about two feet over the edge of the tub. It is more like the foam on beer and they ain't no beer in the tub or no Joe. Just his head and he is grinning.

"I am having a bubble bath", he says, "I pulled out the plug and I went down the hole with the water."

So we took Joe's head out of them damn suds and we put it on the kitchen table and I says, "Joe, how the hell you going to get back to camp? Don't you know you will be a double you old hell and get in the jug again? This ain't no way to act!"

Sometimes I think Joe ain't got good sense. But all he says is "Gimme a drag." So we did and Mazie she is still laughing and the birds is still picking their teeth and saying nothing.

Well, I went outside where the water comes out from the hole in the floor underneath the tub, but they ain't no part of Joe there. Maybe them fancy bubbles is got him. It don't seem quite right to me and I am getting cold out there in that fancy pink kimono so I got back in the house and Al was sitting on Mazie's lap and she is singing a song to him about pigs and he is getting littler and littler just like a baby, the big fat head. Who does he think he is to do this to me anyway? So I says, "Gimme my pants. I am going back to camp. This is no fun." So I goes. And I don't have much luck getting no rides back and it is late as hell when I come back to the fort and I ain't got no pass nor nothing and them guards on the gates they is tough as hell when you ain't got no pass, not even one you make out for yourself.

So I am sitting on the ground trying to think what is the best thing to do when I remember that gun what Al took from the guy what fell to pieces. I took it when I left Mazie's and I still got it. So I sees a automobile pulling up and stopping and I wait, like always, till the guy gets out. But he is saying good night to the dame what is driving it and they take a hell of a long time about it but by and by he gets out and he starts for the gate and I says "Hold two goes there" and he stops and says "Captain . . . " And God Almighty if it ain't my own boss and am I glad to see him! So I says, "You are just the guy I want to see. How about a pass to get in this goddam place? I am getting sleepy." So he says, "How did you get out," So I tell him about the whole thing, even about sweeping up the tough sergeant and I show him the gun, and when he takes hold of it the damn thing goes all soft in his hand and it is just made from chocolate and it has got warm in my pocket. So he says, "O. K. you come with me," and we go in the gate with no trouble, and when we get up near the guard house he says, "You will be more comfortable here, I think. I think you are going to get eight sections."

But I says, "I don't want to do no more farming, Captain. I am in the army now and I aint going to plow no more sections." And he says, "Oh yeah? That is what you think. You will get the eight sections just the same."

So I am back here again with a duration and if I wait long enough Joe and Al will bring up a submarine in the Carmel river because Joe he can't last very long without no legs or arms or such and Al he ain't going to last long just being rocked to sleep by Mazie. They is both fine fellows and they will be back in time for the deer season anyway,

FRIENDS SOCIETY STILL HELPS THE FRENCH

The American Friends Service Committee, which has been doing such outstanding work in unoccupied France, feeding the hungry, clothing the unsheltered, sent a wire to the local committee which staged the Rashelle Doree concert last night, declaring that the work going on in France would definitely be continued as long as possible.

If for any cause its workers should be forced to leave Unoccupied France, the organization would be moved immediately to Switzerland and the good work would be carried on from there.

MRS. PHILIP WILSON FALLS AND BREAKS LEG

Falling upstairs can be as painful as falling downstairs, according to Mrs. Philip Wilson, Sr. She, it appears, fell up stairs and broke her ankle. This would be bad enough, ordinarily, but it is just plain meanness on Fate's part to pick on Mrs. Wilson so often, because it wasn't so long ago that a rug slid out from under her and caused her to break one of her arms. At least she'll have a nice rest in the hospital for a short time.

MRS. H. E. DeCELLE DIES AT HOME IN CARMEL

Mrs. H. E. DeCelle, mother of Mrs. Mathew Beaton, died Monday afternoon at the Beaton home on Junipero and Ninth.

Mrs. DeCelle, a graduate of the Ripon Conservatory of Music, was best known in Carmel as a music teacher and until a few months ago was instructing a large group of pupils. She had appeared in concert in both her native state, Wisconsin, and in Minnesota, where she lived for some time. She had been a resident in Carmel since 1930.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning, followed by burial at Oak Hill cemetery, San Jose.

LETTERS TO THE PAPER

CONGRATULATES US

Dear Mr. Bassett:

Allow me to congratulate you on your excellent issue of The Cymbal of April 3, 1942.

The two articles that are outstanding from my point of view are, Anne Martin's "The Pacifist's Position in War Time" and "Ann Sheridan's Tour of Army Camps Should be Banned by War Department"—

In a press that has lost itself in war propaganda, these articles are beacon lights of clear thinking and logical sense.

Sincerely,

JENNIE SCOTT GRIFFITHS

HAS GOOD REPLY

Dear Mr. Bassett:

Ignoring the manner, may I say that the method of your correspondent (Mr. Bernard Rowntree) is illogical?—not to go any further. In your last week's number, using the disingenuous old fallacy ad hominem, he attacks the person (myself) instead of the issue, in his remarks about my article "The Pacifist's Positon in War Time." Anyone reading it fairly and intelligently will find more pity for the needless agonies of war, for the youthful victims of mass slaughter, than self pity or pity for the pacifist.

Your correspondent is again illogical—not to go any further—when he criticizes me for not discussing, in the same article, the economic causes of war. My subject was "The Pacifist's Positon in War Time", not the economic causes of war.

In the interest of truth I regret you have not replied to the presentation of fact you asked me to make. Regarding your repeated question, Mr. Editor, as to what pacifists are or are not going to do, how can we foresee the future in these dark times? Of one thing I am certain, we shall do nothing directly or indirectly to help destroy human lfe and what is left of civilization, and we shall do all we can to preserve them.

—ANNE MARTIN

SHELTER MANAGER TELLS WHY CARMEL SUFFERS

Editor, Carmel Cymbal.

The numerous phone calls from disturbed Carmel citizens concerning stray and injured animals, etc., and complaints of disappearance of birds due to increase of cats, leads me to ask space for explanation of the relations of the Monterey County S. P. C. A. to Carmel.

This Society is chartered to render service in municipality or district within the county at the expense of the town or district in question. No money is received from the county.

Receipts include dog license fees and appropriations. Receipts from Carmel in 1940 did not meet expenses of patrol and proportionate share of upkeep of Shelter. A request for an increase being met by a reduced appropriation for 1941. Due notice being given, services were discontinued by unanimous action of the board of directors, as it was impossible to carry "hitch-hikers."

Money matters are handled by a professional accountant. Cost of operation of truck, without allowance for tires or deterioration amounts to $1000 annually; maintenance of Shelter, $1500; then there are salaries. The financial setup is as open as the face of a clock. Miss Elizabeth Montgomery and Capt. Shelburn Robison of Carmel are members of the Board.

It is to be added that the police force of Carmel has been perfectly cooperative, but the proportion of dogs and ownerless cats to population is very high and not everyone is a dog lover, especially with respect to his neighbor's dog or dogs.

Phone calls on any phase of the above situation should be directed to the City Council.

Yours truly,

JULES KAHOFER

April 21, 1942. Shelter Mgr.

Disney's "Dumbo" Here Tonight

Tonight and tomorrow Carmel Theater offers an attractive double bill, Walt Disney's delightful "Dumbo" and a fast-moving thriller-diller of the present moment, "Pacific Blackout". Disney's wistful little Technicolor elephant with the too-big ears is, as everybody knows, his new hero, while Robert Preston and Martha O'Driscoll, the latter a talented, pretty and welcome newcomer, do the honors in the second feature. All juvenile Carmel is expected at tomorrow's matinee. Sunday's continuous program, beginning at 2 o'clock, ushers in a threeday run of the tuneful and hilarious "Babes on Broadway", starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, supported by a dazzling array of America's top comedians, singers and dancers.

"Bedtime Story", playing next Wednesday and Thursday, April 29 and 30, brings Fredric March and Loretta Young together in a giddy comedy, with Robert Benchley coming in for more than his share of laughs. On the same bill is "Yokel Boy", a charming little picture starring Eddie Foy, Jr. and Joan Davis.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATION TO ABANDON PUBLICITY SCHEME FOR NOW

The Carmel Business Association, meeting last Tuesday night decided that it is too late in the year to start the proposed publicity program which was designed to off-set the presumably bad notoriety the coast is getting because of false reports of raids and black-outs. The merchants have decided to put off the plan, probably in the hope that we'll win the war soon and it won't be necessary.

Efforts will be made by the members to obtain more support from the merchants genarally for the Community Information Service, conducted by the Norbergs.

It is also planned to do something about the empty store windows in the busines district. It will be the aim of the merchants to fill them with something, so that it will look as though business as usual was going on behind them.

Do You Admit This, Jean?

(Look what we picked up, type and all, from Bill Gould's weekly column in Tide of Pacfic Grove.)

HONEYMOON

Some time ago, one of Pacific Grove's most popular and eligible bachelors made the step of destiny that took him to Carmel.

* * *

He met one of Carmel's most attractive young ladies.

* * *

The romance budded and blossomed.

* * *

So William "Bill" Toombs and Jean Aiken were married.

* * *

They departed on their honeymoon, spending at least a part of it in San Francisco.

* * *

Now the stories about the event are coming back to the old home town.

* * *

It seems that among other diversions, the newlyweds paid a visit to the Fleishhacker Zoo, an event most people from the suburbs enjoy when they have time to spend in the big city.

* * *

The experience was one which interested them greatly.

* * *

It was late afternoon and whether they were paying rapt attention to the animals ni the zoo, we know not.

* * *

Perhaps it was just to one another—two young people walking on pink clouds, oblivious of all surroundings even to monkeys, tigers and things.

* * *

At any rate, when closing time came, they paid no attention.

* * *

Only to awaken sometime later to the fact that they had been locked into the zoo for the night, along with all the wild animals.

* * *

Our source of information did not tell us just what part of the zoo they were discovered in.

But we'll bet it was among the love birds.

All war materials, especially those relating to California and Californians, will be gathered systematically by the University of California and preserved, according to President Robert G. Sproul. This assembly began with the declaration of war and already a large mass of materials has been assembled.

Student Participation in Civilian Defense--An Editorial

Students should do their part in national defense. There are many jobs students can do for their country. They want to live in a free country as well as anyone else.

Most students are not helping in Civilian Defense. Those in Carmel are all trying to do their part. There is a 100 per cent membership of the Junior Red Cross in Carmel High School and of this the High School is very proud. Every Saturday Carmel High School girls help make Red Cross bandages. A lot of the girls would rather do something else Saturdays, but they know it is their duty to help their country. The boys help in many ways. Some of them are look-out wardens. Some take fire fighting lessons. In an emergency some are messenger boys; all are trying to do their duty.

Defense stamps are sold at the Carmel schools once a buys defense stamps for he week. Practically every student knows by doing this he will help his country. The high school gives First Aid courses also.

This summer, above all, we must get back at the enemy. There is a large part of the work that civilians can do. There will be victory gardens, of course, and Red Cross, First Aid classes, Civilian Defense, Bundles for Britain, Bundles for Blue Jackets, and many others.

Of course many of us will bemoan the fact of the tire shortage, for now we cannot go camping in the Sierras or back to New York for a visit to Aunt Hattie's. However, I don't believe many of us have tried looking around our own community for recreation. Let's take Carmel, for instance. There are plenty of places for hikes and camping in the vicinity if we only look harder. There are lots of things we can substitute for pleasures given to our country.
